LATE FEE and TOO LATE MAIL of LONDON

A request for information

PROBLEM. After failing to write up my collection of Late Fee cancellations in a coherent manner using Stitt Dibdens "Late Fee and Too Late Stamps" GBPS 1966 / 1971. I realised that a fresh approach was needed and that a new chapter for the Encyclopedia should be prepared on the subject.

In my collection there were too many covers with the so called Late Fee cancellations that showed no Late Fee having been paid in stamps and often with an additional "Too Late" cachet.

If the Late Fee was paid in cash with no record on the cover, then it would be impossible to recognise the cover for what it was. This is the theme that runs through Stitt Dibdens' book.

SOLUTION. These problems were solved when it became clear that:-

1/ The payment of the Late Fee in cash was rare. Rowland Hill did not approve of payment in cash and except for the Chief Office at St.Martins le Grand, it was increasingly rare from the mid 1840's. In November 1858 Rowland Hill sent out an internal notice to say that any employee accepting cash over the counter for Late Fee mail would be dismissed. Thus covers, certainly after 1858 should show the extra stamp or stamps to cover the Late Fee charge

2/ I believe that "Late Fee" cancellations were applied to all mail posted during the Late Fee period and that the code used in the cds (L1d - L2d – L3d etc) refers to the period in which the letter was posted not that the Late Fee had been paid.

Thus "Posted Since" would be the best term, but it is usually impossible to change terminology once it has been widely accepted, so Late Fee will remain.

IDENTIFICATION. To identify a Late Fee cover one must have both the Postage and Late Fee rates in a clear chronological table. This I have done, but there have been lots of problems in getting the correct dates, so if you have any comments or corrections, please let me know.

The most significant dates for identifying a Late Fee cover are when prepayment by means of stamps became compulsory:-

1842 – Late Fee in Branch Offices

1855 – Inland Postage and Late Fee except for St.Martins le Grand.

Nov 1858 – All Late Fee and Inland Postage including St.Martins le Grand.(for many years there was a bulk mailing facility at St.Martins le Grand, in which postage could be prepaid in cash, this was always in the middle of the working day, there is no overlap with late fee posting).

Nov 1875 – Both Inland, Foreign and Colonial Postage and Late Fee

Thus between 1858 and 1875 one can have covers to a foreign destination, with only a penny stamp, this was to pay the Late Fee, postage having been paid in cash.

CHRONOLOGICAL LIST OF RATES OF POSTAGE AND LATE FEE This listing should allow a rapid identification of whether a cover has paid a Late Fee or not.

If there is a list of rates that run together such as 1d.2d.4d.6d.8d.etc. these are the rates for weight increments.

If however they are separated by the word "or" such as 1d. or 2d. or 4d. this is either the rate for differing Late Fee periods or separate postage rate bands starting with 1d. or 2d. or 4d. the latter is true of some complex areas such as Foreign and Colonial Printed Matter.

Prepayment by stamps or cash was a fundamental part of Rowland Hill's 1840 reforms. Unpaid mail was at first penalised by being more expensive before payment was made compulsory.

Foreign and Colonial rates were too complex to summarize, so prior to the General Postal Union in 1875 I have just said "see Moubray." This is British Letter Mail to Overseas Destinations 1840 – 1875, J.& M.Moubray, Royal Philatelic Society, London, 1992. A really superb book, nothing on postmarks but everything on rates of postage for letters and registered mail.

PRINTED MATTER There is no Moubray to turn to when studying printed matter rates before the GPU and UPU agreements in 1875 and 1879. The two main sources of information, the Post Office Directory and the Post Office Guide are ambiguous when discussing rates for the many categories of printed matter. Indeed in the 1855 Post Office Directory is the statement "the internal rates of foreign countries newspapers....cannot be ascertained with sufficient certainty to give them generally in the Post Office Directory"

One of the problems was the proliferation of categories of printed matter each with its own set of postal rates:- 'Stamped newspapers' -- Prices Current, both 'stamped' and not -- Printed Votes -- Proceedings in Parliament -- Magazines -- Plantation Accounts -- Law Proceedings -- Printed Pamphlets -- Periodicals etc.

This all became very much simpler in the 1870's with the General Postal Union in (1875) and later Universal Postal Union (1879) agreements. One category that can be traced easily, certainly for Inland mail, is 'Stamped' or later 'Registered' newspapers. Before 1870 if a newspaper or Prices Current had paid stamp duty, then this acted in lieu of postage for the Inland Mail and for a short time on Colonial and some Foreign Mail.

In terms of Late Fee use, there were usually separate rates for letters and newspapers. These have thus been listed separately in the chronological tables.

RAILWAY LATE FEES form a distinct group and have been separately listed in the tables. They usually treated letters and newspapers as the same. There were occasional restrictions on newspapers, probably because of the small size of the letter boxes on the Stations.

One Station, that at Cannon Street had after 1885, its own separate Late Fee for newspapers to the Continent by the early morning mail

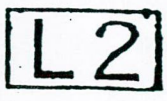

SOURCES In putting together this chronological listing, there have been many cases of conflicting information. If you disagree with my selection, please let me know. My primary source has been Post Office notices, circulars and minutes. The secondary source the Post Office Guide, an official publication. The tertiary source, the Post Office Directory, a private (or semi-official) publication.

LONDON DISTRICT There was little need for a Late Fee service for the London District, in the 1880's one could post a letter as late as 645pm at St.Martins le Grand for guaranteed delivery that same evening to " all the suburbs of London – except a few distant places". The service was available but rarely used.

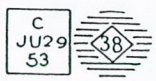

QUESTIONNAIRE LATE FEE AND TOO LATE MAIL Please take some time to check your collection for Late Fee and Too Late items – they occur everywhere!

Early in the war, there was a special 2/6d.fee instituted for getting foreign and colonial mail given straight to the Censor, instead of being delayed, as was the case with the rest of the mail. The 2/6d.stamp was placed on the front of the envelope for outgoing mail and on the first page of the enclosure on incoming mail.
